Hamilton's Imperial Presidency - given by Luke Thompson, PhD

The talk will be about Hamilton's Presidential vision based on Colonial precedents, the ideas of the Scottish Enlightenment, Hamilton's being a "New Light" Presbyterian, and his practical experience in the Revolutionary War.

Hamilton underestimated the extent to which the energetic presidency he created would motivate Congress to establish its own means of counterbalancing the President. This consequence forged Hamilton's vision of the Presidency, as well as legislative branch checks and balances.
